In the House the morning and a christian, so her death was that of the right countries. afternoon sessions were occupied with
Mr. Mardaniu's bill to district the State and Mr. Copstano's bill in lien. After a somewhat stormy debate, particularly in the afternoon, between Mr. Campbell of Washington, Mr. Polk of Maury, and Mr. Bostick, Mr. Copeland's bill was adopted, and the bill First foor above 4th St. near Merchante Hotel, Philadelphia, House adjourned until 7 o'clock, P.

M. In the night session Mr. Perkins of Williamson, introduced another rehef bill, which provides that the Bank of the State shall renew all notes under discount by the payment of the interest, upon giving good and sufficeint security. It also provides that the Bank shall not pay specie for its notes of five dellars and under, until the first day of January, 1844. This bill, if passed into a law, will in effect, amount to a House adjourned untill 7 o'clock, P. into a law, will in effect, amount to a receipt of the goods, or the whole in some of suspension of specie payments. The consequence would be that all the notes est market price will be allowed. above the denomination of five dollars would be withdrawn from circulation, and their place supplied by notes of five dollars and under. A measure of this sort to say the least, is of doubtof this sort to say the least, is of doubtfal policy.

Yesterday the bill to appoint commissioners to examine the State Bank and Branches passed the House of Probate Court, November Term, 1842. A resolution to go into the election of chase money.
